

UNLUCKY THIRTEENTH

Boston Nationals Lost to New York.

IN YESTERDAY'S MEETING

Score Was 3 to 3 Up to That Point and New York Went in and Broke Up the Game With Four Long Hits.

Boston, June 3.—Boston stayed off defeat for twelve innings yesterday and then fell down badly in the thirteenth, allowing New York to walk away with the game easily by the score of 8 to 5. Up to that point the score had stood at three to three. Fraser pitched a good game up to the last inning when he lost his grip, the visitors securing four hits, including two triples and a double, besides hitting one man and fumbling a grounder.

Ames was in the box for New York and kept Boston's hits well scattered. He was a trifle unsteady in the sixth, walking Tenney and Batty after two men were out. Delehanty hit and Tenney scored. Wolverton singled and Batty and Delehanty went in. Wolverton was out stealing. Previous to that time New York had scored three by bunting hits.

It looked like a score for the home team in the eighth when Cannell singled and Batty and Delehanty walked, with one down, but Wolverton fled to Doolin and Cannell was out at the plate. New York almost closed the game in the ninth, Brown walked, and was sacrificed by McGann. Bresnahan fled to Cannell, and Browne was doubled at third by a beautiful throw from Cannell to Wolverton.

Neither side came near scoring until the fatal thirteenth for the home crowd. Devlin started it off with a single. Gilbert got hit. Fraser fumbled Strang's grounder. Doolin then tripled, sending in the three men. Browne struck out and Doolin was run down between third and home, on McGann's grounder. McGann went in on Bresnahan's double and the latter scored on Mertes' triple. That was the end.

Boston, June 3.—A bill in equity against President Harry C. Pulliam and various umpires of the National league base ball teams was filed in the superior court here yesterday by John J. McGraw, manager of the New York team of the National league, in which the latter seeks to have the defendants enjoined from imposing a fine on him for alleged misconduct and preventing him from acting as manager of his team on the field. Justice Sheldon issued an order of notice returnable Monday and the hearing will be held then.

"BLUE-BLOODED" DOGS.

Burlington, June 3.—The third annual bench show of the Champlain Kennel club was brought to a close Thursday evening after a successful continuance of three days.

Among the local dogs which attracted much attention was A. J. Taylor's pointer Malva of Kent, the captor of first prize in the limit, first in the open and first in the winners. This animal is four years old and two years ago in the Montreal exhibit won the same prize, besides three specials as the best sporting dog in the show. The pack of twelve English foxhounds from Shelburne Farms have been daily a center of attraction. Judge Mortimer ranked them as among the best packs in this country. The Irish terrier Jack from the same kennels won first prize and two seconds, being beaten in limit and open classes by a champion from Montreal. A. M. Bacon's English setter Corn won third prize. This animal was also much admired; it has many strong points, among them being an especially fine head.

The officers of the show were: Superintendent, A. J. Taylor; dog show committee, Capt. E. P. Woodbury, chairman, Dr. H. Nelson Jackson, A. G. Mansur, Phil J. Blair of Plattsburgh, N. Y., G. B. Walton of Montpelier, S. J. Beatty, Robert Noble; veterinarian, Dr. George A. Miller; steward, L. P. Wood; secretary, C. H. Mower.

To the indefatigable work of these gentlemen is due the success of the show, which in number of entries and in rare and valuable breeds, excelled all other undertakings of the kind previously held in this State or in this section of the country outside of New York and Boston.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Cecilia Loftus is well again after her recent illness and is to resume stage work.

Mess Langtry confesses she was born in 1854 and does not have to be sworn to admit it either.

Arrangements are being made for Sarah Bernhardt paying another farewell visit to this country.

Stage realism is becoming more and more pronounced. In a London production, "Port Arthur," the services of Frederic Villiers, the well known war correspondent, have been secured.

William Faversham is to leave his employ of Charles Frohman temporarily and appear as the star in "The Squawman," under the management of Liebler & Co. The play was written by Edwin Milton Royle.

Charles Frohman is now in London, where he went to look after his theatrical interests in the British metropolis. Miss Ellen Terry is to join the Frohman forces in a few days, when she will appear in a new play by J. M. Barrie.

There is nothing like taking time by the forelock. Cyril Maude, a London manager, has already received applications for six seats for the opening performance at his new theater, the building of which has not yet been started.

Banquet.

"Banquet," from the French and Spanish, means a small bench, a little seat, and when spelled banquetta means a three legged stool. It has reference to sitting while eating instead of taking refreshments in "stand up" fashion.

STORY OF THE DEFEAT

Russians Enveloped by Japanese Ships.

RENDERED POWERLESS

Torpedo Boats Began Their Work on Inside of Revolving Circle—Russians Suffered Most Heavily on Sunday.

Tokio, June 3.—A Japanese officer who has returned to Sasebo gives the following account of the sea fight off the Tsu islands:

"At 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning a wireless message read:

"The enemy's squadron is in sight and has reached the naval base."

"This message was transmitted to all our ships by the flagship, with instructions to get ready for action. Our squadron left their rendezvous and headed for the eastern channel off Tsu Shima. Our men seemed to be filled with new inspiration and were eager for the long delayed fight to begin.

"When Tsu Shima was sighted to the southwest the sea was rough and the torpedo boats were forced to run for the shelter of the island. Our third fighting squadron, with the Takashimo to port, reconnoitered the Russian course, and at 11:30 a. m. informed the main squadron by wireless telegraph that the Russian ships were passing into the east channel, whereupon our main squadron, changing its course somewhat to the southward, came in sight of Oki Shima at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

"The third division arrived later and joined the main squadron. The first and second divisions, accompanied by the destroyer flotilla, changed to a westerly course, while the third division and fourth destroyer flotilla headed slightly eastward. During the maneuver the Russian flagship appeared to the southward at 1:45 o'clock. The Russians steamed up in double column.

"The fleet was numerous, but no living being was visible. The Russian ships seemed to be in good order. Our ships hoisted the flag of action, the Mikasa signalling: 'The destiny of our empire depends upon this action. You are all expected to do your utmost.' Our men seemed to silently weigh the significance of this signal.

"Our first and second divisions turned to the Russian starboard, while the third division kept in close touch with the preceding two divisions. With the Japanese ships proceeding in this order, it was 2:13 o'clock when the Russians opened fire. The first two shots fell short of our line and it was some minutes before we began firing. Then the battle was on, with firing from both sides. Our destroyers kept on the port side of the main squadron and in this formation we pressed the Russians against the coast of Kishu and they were obliged to change their course to the east.

"We so maneuvered our ships as to have their bows parallel to the north side of the Russian line. The Mikasa, of our first division, which had been leading, changed to the rear of the line, while the Kasuga headed the line. The engagement now became very fierce. The Borodino was seen to be on fire. Five ships of our second division concentrated their fire on the Borodino. Our first division now began firing vigorously, proceeding parallel with the Russian line, and as we began to press against the head of the Russian line our third division veered to the Russian rear, thus enveloping their ships.

"The engagement proceeded hotly. Our second division followed a course parallel with the northern side of the Russians, this movement completing the envelopment. The Russian ships were seen trying to break through, and our destroyers intercepted their new course. This state of affairs continued until the following day, with the ships at varying distances.

"Thus inclosed on all sides, the Russians were helpless and powerless to escape the circle. Previous instructions had been given the torpedo boats to attack the Russian ships. Following instructions, the fifth destroyer flotilla advanced against a Russian ship, upon which the second division had been concentrating its fire, signaling, 'We are going to give the last thrust at them.' The Russian ship continued to fight, and seeing the approaching torpedo boats, directed its fire on them. Undaunted, our destroyers pressed forward, the Chitose meantime continuing its fire. The torpedo flotilla arrived within 200 meters of the Russian ship and the Shiranui fired the first shot. Two other torpedo boats fired one each. The Shiranui received two shells, but the other boats were not damaged. The Russian ship was completely sunk.

"Sundown saw the battle raging furiously. Our shells were evidently telling on the Russians, who showed signs of confusion. Our fifth torpedo flotilla after destroying the Borodino followed in the wake of our second division, the signal reading, 'Something like the Russian submarines have been sighted. Attack them.'

"The flotilla followed and located the object, which proved to be a sinking ship with its overturned bottom showing. Thirty survivors clung to the wreck, crying for assistance. Firing ceased with the approach of darkness.

"According to orders previously given for a torpedo attack after dark all the destroyer flotilla, dividing into two squadrons, proceeded to attack the Russians during the whole night. The Russians frustrated the first and second attacks with searchlights. A third attack was carefully made, and the Yugiri sank a ship of the Borodino type and also hit others.

"During the night the Russians continued to move and we preserved our enveloping movement some distance from the Russian position. The Russian ships headed northeast after daylight, hoping to reach Vladivostok. Our officers and men were determined that not a ship should escape and resolved not to relax their efforts until they had succeeded in sinking or capturing every Russian ship.

"Our ships always kept ahead of the Russians. The battle was resumed at 9 o'clock Sunday morning twelve miles east of Chiyuon bay and lasted all day. There the Russians suffered their heaviest losses. They seemed unprepared to repel night attacks. During our first night attack the Russians showed nine searchlights and frustrated the attacks, but clearly gave us the location of the fleet, which brought success later."

BIG MAIL DEFICIT.

Postoffice Department Short $15,000,000 This Year.

Washington, D. C., June 3.—An estimate, based upon the returns for the first three-quarters of the current fiscal year, shows that the postoffice department will run behind in the 12 months ending June 30 at least $15,000,000.

Only twice before in the history of the service has the postal deficit approached these figures, in 1890 and 1895, when it was a little more than $10,000,000.

The excess of expenditure over earnings this year is attributed to the large expenditures for rural free delivery and the tremendous growth of the service generally, with a consequent proportionate increase in the cost of maintenance.

From 1895 to 1902 there was a steady decline in the annual postal deficit, the low water mark being reached in the latter year, when the deficit was less than $5,000,000. In 1903, however, the deficit began to climb, and in that fiscal year it amounted to $4,586,000, and in 1904 to $8,812,000.

Rural free delivery will cost this year about $20,000,000 and it is to this large sum that the postal authorities lay the principal blame for the excess of expenditures over receipts.

The amount of unprofitable matter carried by the railroads upon which Uncle Sam loses large amounts annually is given as an additional reason, and still another drain on the revenues of the postal service, which was felt more this year than at any time heretofore, is due to the change in the manner of administering the star route service.

City free delivery has also greatly increased in cost, as it has been extended to communities that have not heretofore enjoyed it, and enlarged in those where it has long been established.

It is estimated at the department that the rural service for next year will involve an expenditure of at least $26,000,000, and if the postal business continues as at present the next postal deficit will be much larger than the one now confronting the postmaster general.

WILL SAVE A MILLION.

Weaver Plans to Cut Down Philadelphia Expenses.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 3.—Mayor Weaver is to be master of the Republican city organization, and his programme was made public yesterday after the council's meeting. He will probably assume personal charge of the organization and insist that nominees for the Republican city ticket be acceptable to him.

Many official heads in the various city bureaus are likely to fall. None but employees whose services can be spared will be dropped, but it is estimated that they will bring the aggregate yearly saving to the city up to about $1,000,000.

This is not a new idea of Mayor Weaver's. He wanted to put it into operation at the first of the year, but he was persuaded by Durhan and other organization leaders that to do so would cause trouble for the party at the spring election. The mayor has informed some of his friends that he was preparing to ask for the resignation of many of the unnecessary place holders in all the city departments.

Judging from what the mayor is alleged to have said to some of his callers, it seems to him necessary for the Republican organization to nominate an entirely new ticket for the fall election with the exception of judges.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Increase in the Amount for the Month of May.

Washington, June 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business May 31, 1905, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,000,346,128, which is an increase for the month of $3,128,167, and is accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of available cash on hand.

The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest bearing debt, $895,158,240; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,377,163; debt bearing no interest, $354,962,100; total, $1,281,497,503.

This amount, however, does not include $993,529,969 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury held for their redemption.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Gold reserve, $150,000,000; trust funds, $995,529,969; general fund, $139,248,070; in national bank deposits, $78,457,792; in Philippine treasury, $3,739,479; total, $1,366,975,312, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $1,055,533,934, which leaves a balance on hand of $281,441,378.
